PROTECT YOUR LANDSCAPE INVESTMENT

Rain-Man is here to make sure that your sprinkler system will help improve your lawn and plant health.

Irrigation rotors should be tested, tuned-up and adjusted at the beginning of each season to ensure they're working as efficiently as possible.

Failing to do so can lead to more serious, long-term problems. For example, broken heads can cause dry spots in a lawn. Sprinklers that are not aligned properly can lead to water waste by spraying homes, driveways and sidewalks. Debris can get caught in pop-up units, causing uneven distribution. Overwatering can lead to a shallow root system, causing a lawn to become dormant and die. We continue to offer a Spring Tune-up and check your entire system.

Rain-Man is here to make sure that your sprinkler system will help improve your lawn and plant health. In order to make sure everything is working properly we continue to offer a "Spring Tune-Up" which consists of:

- Turn on your water to pressurize the system.
- Clean around all heads to allow heads to pop up properly throughout the growing season.
- Straighten/lower/raise any necessary heads for better coverage.
- Check adjustments of heads for proper coverage as your landscaping changes from year to year.
- Program your controller for the most efficient setting(s) at time of service. Replace battery if needed.
- Check rain sensor (if equipped).
- Check backflow device for leaks and damage.
